

Ortyn and The Aliens

The Speed of Thought

The speed of sound turns deafening when past that fast you zoom
Your noisy wake will shake and quake and make a sonic BOOM!
Although to chase around this place the speed of sound's all right
The pace you need to race through space exceeds the speed of light

*The instant that you think you're there right then and there you've got
Until you find you've changed your mind then just like that you're not
The instant that you think you're there right then and there you've got
Until you find you've changed your mind then just like that you're not*

Some brains claim it's impossible a beam of light to pass
They note you'd change or rearrange your molecules or mass
So quoted Albert Einstein as the cosmic truth he taught
He wrote the book yet overlooked the blazing speed of thought

*The instant that you think you're there right then and there you've got
Until you find you've changed your mind then just like that you're not
The instant that you think you're there right then and there you've got
Until you find you've changed your mind then just like that you're not*

If ever you've dreamed up a scheme to visit distant stars
To drop by far-off galaxies then stop for lunch on Mars
Your flight may take eight million years and still might come to naught
Or you could reach the stars this minute at the speed of thought

*The instant that you think you're there right then and there you've got
Until you find you've changed your mind then just like that you're not
The instant that you think you're there right then and there you've got
Until you find you've changed your mind then just like that you're not*
